

The Royal Horseguards Hotel in London is one of the highly decorative properties in Thistle Hotels' five-star Guoman Estates brand. Brintons were commissioned to design and supply Axminster carpet that would be used in the refurbishment of various ground floor spaces at the hotel that included the lounge, reception, corridors and restaurant.

I'm thrilled with the results at Royal Horseguards. I hadn't worked with Brintons for a very long time, so I think it's fair to say we were pretty new to one another.

When you're working on a project like this, there is a great need to click first time and that's exactly what happened. I thought Brintons were tremendous. They were under a lot of pressure because they came into the project quite late, but they were fantastic to deal with and really embraced the brief with excitement and enthusiasm. I consider the final results at the hotel to be superb.
